The author/s retain copyright of their papers without restrictions. Authors will then grant the publisher the right of first publication, and other non-exclusive publishing rights. The initial copyright of a paper is held by the authors (or their employer, in some instances). When publishing that paper the copyright may continue to be held by the author, or can be licensed or transferred to the publisher.

The journal do not restrict the rights of the copyright owner. The journal allow authors to retain the copyright of their papers without restrictions. Authors will then grant the publisher the right of first publication, and other non-exclusive publishing rights.

This is an open access journal. All articles are distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution License CC BY 4.0

(<https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>). Information to open access: www.doaj.org.

The terms of the Creative Commons (or other) license do not apply to the copyright holder. This means that when the author retains copyright without restrictions, the license applies to the readers and the publisher. But the license applies to the readers and the author when:

- copyright has been transferred to the journal
- the author retains copyright and grants exclusive publishing rights to the journal
- the author retains copyright, transfers or grants exclusive commercial rights to the publisher, and a non-commercial license is used

I/We understand that Journal of Global, Planetary, and One Health will act on my/our behalf to publish, reproduce, distribute and transmit the Work and will authorize other reputable third parties (such as document delivery services) to do the same.

I/We warrant that the Work has not been published before in its current or a substantially similar form and is not under consideration for another publication, does not contain any unlawful statements. I/We warrant that “proof of consent” has been obtained for studies of named organizations and people. All authors have received a final version of the Work, take responsibility for the content and agree to its submission. I/We assert my/our moral rights to be identified as the author/s of the Work.

Note: In case if all authors are not available then only one author’s signature is sufficient.
